Overview

Forums @ PNSQC is an online discussions site anyone interested in software quality. The forum is intended to provide year-round and timely support to the PNSQC mission of enabling knowledge exchange to produce higher quality software. Therefore, the range of topics may be broad, while a number of questions and threads may enable probing into very specific issues. The forum accompanies a wealth of intellectual content on the website from past PNSQC conferences, and these may serve to promote some discussions. Contents of the forum may be viewed by anyone in the public. However, only registered and logged-in community members may post content.

Please note: Use of this forum for recruiting, advertising, or marketing for personal gain is not permitted. Doing so may result in removal of content and/or loss of community membership.
